12. Disclaimer

This template is provided for general informational purposes only and is not legal advice. There is no single required form for child travel consent, and requirements differ by airline, cruise line, destination country, and the terms of any custody order. Many destinations expect the consent to be notarized, and some require additional authentication such as an apostille. Travelling with a child in breach of a custody order can have serious legal consequences, including criminal exposure. Confirm the requirements with your carrier and the destination country before you travel, and consult a licensed family law attorney if custody is contested or a court order restricts travel. Use of this template does not create an attorney-client relationship with ScanContract.
